Public Health Students' New Orleans Favorites Quick Guide

What is something everyone "has to do" when they first visit the city?

"Oof. It depends on which neighborhood you're in. If you're in Mid City/Bayou St. John, visit the bayou and City Park. If you are toward Uptown/Lower Garden District, that's a nice spot to do the classic streetcar ride. Downtown has museums and arts centers. It also depends on the time of year, of course. The beginning of the year is dedicated to Mardi Gras. As we exit carnival season and move into spring/summer, there's festivals like Jazz Fest and Bayou Boogaloo. Every season in New Orleans is celebrated in some manner or another."

What is the best part about living and studying in NOLA?

"There's something here for everyone! If you like nightlife, we got it; if you're into festivals, look no further; if you're all about culinary culture, we know how to feed you."

"Always having something to do when you need a study break!"

"The answer is in the question... that you get to live and study in the greatest city on the planet!"

Top Advice and Things To Know

"Romanticism is still alive and well in New Orleans!"

"Take the streetcar! The French Quarter is lovely, but get out and explore other areas of the city. It is so worth it!"

"I love how open minded and down to earth so many people are who live here."

"Live in actual Nola. Not Metairie, not Kenner and not the campus dorms. If you are living in those spaces, you are not experiencing the parts of New Orleans that make visitors become permanent residents. The beauty of New Orleans is found in its historic neighborhoods. If you walk on foot through lower garden or mid city or the marigny, you'll see what people fall in love with."
